DETAILED ACTION

The prior art rejection of the Office action mailed on 5/20/04 is repeated here.

Response to Arguments

1. Applicant's arguments filed 11/22/04 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive of any error in the rejection in the Office action mailed on 5/20/04.

With respect to applicant's argument regarding the co-existence of silk-screening and preparation of Jewish religious scrolls. Although no art has been found in indicating that Jewish religious scrolls have been silk-screened, this does not render the combination novel. In fact the lack of a teaching in one reference is the very reason combination rejections exist. There are most likely thousands if not millions of particular textual documents that have not been silk-screened but would still have been obvious to silk-screen. The combination of the rejection indicates that Jewish religious scrolls are a known document and silk-screening is a known method of printing documents and therefore it would have been obvious to silk-screen Jewish religious scrolls. With respect to applicant's arguments regarding the precise placement of the text, it is a common desire to print a document as perfectly as possible, free from any defects. In reality, there is a limit to the amount of precision that can be had due to economical factors. It would have been obvious to design a system with the amount of precision that is necessary to reach the desired level of perfection of the finished product.

With respect to applicant's argument that there is no evidence of record of silk-screening on animal parchment, it is noted by the examiner that animal parchment is a known printing media and silk-screen printing is a known method of printing. One of ordinary skill in the art would recognize this and would be able to use the general knowledge of the art in order to silk-screen on animal parchment.

Additionally, whether the parchment is Kosher or not, does not appear to have any physical effect on the capability of silk-screening on parchment.

2. This is an RCE of applicant's application. All claims are drawn to the same invention claimed in the previous final Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL even though it is a first action in this case. See MPEP § 706.07(b). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no, however, event will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
